Summertime in Hartland

Please try to find time to visit St. Nectan's Hartland Flower Festival over the August Bank Holiday weekend.
Light refreshments will be available.

The church will be open to visitors from 10am-5pm from the Friday to the Bank Holiday Monday.

If you would like some extra excitement, join us for a concert by The Wreckers Coast Choir on Saturday at 7pm and a Songs of Praise on Sunday 25th at 6pm.

Entry to Saturday's concert, to include refreshments, will be £6.00 on the door.

From Jane Skinner

Not exactly a blazing summer but you can enjoy a festive experience at the Flower Festival at St. Nectan's, Stoke which starts on Friday morning and continues in style on Saturday with the Wreckers Coastal Choir. Always good fun, I'm sure they'll meet the challenge of singing to the rafters, details included in this week's sheet. Advance warning to put Saturday 14th September in your diary. It's the Historic Churches Ride and Stride weekend when we are invited to visit as many churches as possible and be sponsored as we go. This benefits all churches involved when we later apply to Devon Historic Churches for a grant. At Woolsery we are using this event as the launch of our InfoPoint and hope many will come and experience what we have been working on for the last six months. If you can't come and visit, hopefully you can get to your own church and give an enthusiastic welcome to any doing the challenge. In the meantime time, this Friday is the final run of our advert in the Church Times. Highlighted again in the Diocesan 'Roots & Shoots', join with me in praying for a good response. Jane
